Alice Longworth Says

(Special To The News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 25.—Doctor Townsend didn't enjoy either the questions or the manners of the members of the house committee charged with investigating him and his plan, so he simply walked out on them. It is hard to blame him, for no one can be more offensive than a senator or representative sometimes is at such hearings.

After all, though, the doctor has been intimidating his interlocutors and their colleagues with threats of election defeat, and this may only be their little way of getting even for the pressure he has put on them to support his scheme.

If he were a representative of "entrenched greed" he probably would already be behind the bars. It's a different proposition when it comes to disciplining an evangelist whose following is reckoned in millions of voters.

It may be bad politics to make a martyr out of one who claims his sole purpose is to protect the aged, but it would be extremely humiliating to congress to let him get away with his defiance.

ALICE LONGWORTH.

Charge Murder Against Members Of Black Legion

Detroit Prosecutor Places Murder Charges Against Twenty Five Of Order

UNVEIL WEIRD SECRETS OF CULT

(International News Service)

DETROIT, May 25.—Cracking down on the secret Black Legion Society of haters and horse-whippers, Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea today charged 25 members of the black-robed band of terrorists with the murder of Charles A. Poole, WPA worker.

He announced issuance of murder warrants against 13 of the 14 being held, and 12 "John Does."

All, he charged, were present when the organization, which allegedly wields the power of life and death over members, doomed Poole to death at a secret meeting, after spurious reports he beat his wife.

A fourteenth in custody, James Roy Lorance, was not named in the warrants.

The 13 men in custody will be arraigned this afternoon, McCrea said.

Meanwhile, full forces of Michigan law working on two fronts were unveiling the weird secrets of the klan-like military society, while Arthur H. Lupp, named in confiscated inter-department letters as the "senior commander," came to the front and declared he would neither affirm nor deny he is connected with the organization.

Nine And Half Billions Congress Appropriations

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

(Copyright, 1936, by International News Service)

WASHINGTON, May 25.—In the face of bi-partisan demands for retrenchment, congress apparently will appropriate approximately $9,500,000,000 in the present session and thus shatter hopes of early balancing of the budget without new and heavy taxation.

The appropriation record of the session had been virtually written. The total of the huge money bills, as approved by one or both houses, had reached $9,500,000,000 with little prospect of the total being cut and a possibility existing that it may be boosted.

The enormous outlay as compared to the tax receipts estimated in the presidential budget estimate, forecast a deficit of $3,000,000,000 at the end of the next fiscal year, June

Perry Highway Work Is Started

Curve And Grade Crossing Elimination Starts At Zelienople District

Work on the elimination of curves and grade crossings on the Perry Highway in the Zelienople district has been started by the McCready Construction Company of Pittsburgh and before the end of the year the improvement will be ready for use. The new part of the highway will be approximately 1.7 miles in length and will skirt Harmony instead of going through it as the highway now does.

A viaduct will be built across the B. & O. tracks and the Conoquenessing Creek, thus eliminating the sharp curves at the present bridge in Harmony, and several other bad curves.

Work will be pushed from either end of the improvement and in all about 125 men will be used. Other than the superintendents and foremen on the job, the workers will be taken from the unemployed lists in the Butler office. Robert Simmers is in charge of the work for the McCready company.

Sunday Storm Forces East Liverpool Fliers Down On Golf Course

"Lost in a fog" was a recent popular tune, but lost in the rain was the experience of Paul Deitz of East Liverpool, O., aviator.

During the severe rainstorm of Sunday evening an airplane was heard droning over the Castle Hills golf course. The pilot seemed to be lost, debating evidently whether to try and land, or not.

Finally he settled the plane down on No. 8 fairway amid a downpour of rain and claps of thunder. Two men climbed out of the plane. One was Deitz, the pilot, the other a passenger.

It developed that Deitz had taken the passenger up for a spin from the East Liverpool airport Sunday afternoon ,and got caught in the sudden rain storm.

According to Pilot Deitz, it was very bad flying. You couldn't see the earth very distinctly. It was dangerous to try and land in the strong wind. Attendants at two airports in this vicinity waved him back when he tried to land.

Lands On Golf Course.

Deitz realized that his gasoline supply was running low. He was cruising around the vicintiy of Beaver Falls looking for a place to land.

One Civil War Veteran Out Sunday Night

Single Representative Of G. A. R. Attends Memorial Services Last Night

D. M. CLARK

With the Memorial Day season at hand, which event was inaugurated years ago in memory of the Civil War dead, but which now has been broadened to honor the deceased soldiery of all wars of the United States, Commander D. M. Clark, of Post 100, G. A. R., will be the outstanding figure at the services to be held in connection with the occasion.

Commander Clark is one of the few Civil War veterans who is able to get about, and as the years have progressed, the hand of time has slowed up his step and bent his figure so that he is no longer able to stand erect as once.

He has become an endearing figure to the veterans of the later wars, and he will be signally honored on Memorial Day, when the annual Memorial Day services take place.

Mr. Clark was the only Civil War veteran able to be out at the Memorial services last evening at North street bridge and at the First Baptist church.

As soon as the bandit, who was dressed roughly, fled, a call was sent to police headquarters and a squad arrived quickly at the store.

BLACKMAIL PROBE EXPANDS

New Allegations In Smith Probe

Third Person May Be Indicted In Connection With Alleged Blackmail

EVIDENCE GIVEN NEW YORK JURORS

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, May 25—Allegations which may result in a third indictment in connection with the extortion of more than $12,000 from Alfred E. Smith, Jr., were to be placed before the New York county grand jury today.

Assistant District Attorney Hastings declared he was prepared to ask for a superseding indictment, naming not only Max D. Krone, private detective, and Attorney A. Henry Ross—both already indicted—but another person, said to be familiar figure in midtown society.

Third Person Implicated.

A dozen or more pretty girls who have figured in cases investigated by Krone, and later settled out of court for various large sums, have told the prosecutor they met Krone through this man and that he paid the bills at the informal parties where they met men of wealth and social position.

Aside from the Smith case the grand jury was scheduled to go into another suit brought by a girl against a prominent man, and later settled out of court, when Samuel C. Stampleman, president of a safety razor concern, recounts his experiences.

Stampleman was sued for $100,000 in 1934 by Helen Conboy, but the suit never came to trial. It is said to have been settled for $5,000. Ross was the girl's attorney and Krone appeared as an investigator.

Another witness scheduled to be heard by the grand jury is Margaret Flynn, who as a public stenographer at the Hotel Victoria, had an opportunity to learn some of the sleuth's business. She was brought here from Erie, Pa., to testify.

After being caught by Lowers, the latter and R. D. Fisher, car foreman, brought Smith to the city jail. He was fingerprinted and photographed by Detectives' Lieutenant Ray Showalter.

His confession alleged to have been made was reduced to writing and Smith signed the statement after which he agreed to waive extradition and was returned to Warren this afternoon.

NINE AND HALF BILLIONS CONGRESS APPROPRIATIONS

30, 1937, as compared to the administration's expectation that the deficit would be sliced to $1,098,000,000.

Estimates submitted by President Roosevelt at the opening of the session on January 6 were bowled over not only by the payment of the soldiers bonus and the supreme court's AAA decisions but by additional requests which the chief executive felt obliged to make.

Only two movements in congress, it appeared, threatened to force the session's total beyond the present figure. They were the demands for hundreds of millions to carry on the Public Works Administration and the proposed billion-dollar housing program.

Their witnesses were asked how long they had known the applicants, whether or not they had ever been arrested, and questions as to their character.

Usually there are from 40 to 60 applicants at each naturalization court. The big increase this time is believed to be due to the prospects of getting old age pensions.

cleared for action on relief allocations.

Thus far, the legislature has provided money sufficient to last only to the end of this month. Unless additional appropriations are provided this week, the state emergency relief board will be without power to make distributions after next Sunday.

With Democrats and Republicans still at odds over the rate at which appropriations are to be made thru the balance of the year, the lawmakers expect several days of dispute, culminating in the approval of another emergency resolution. That was the procedure by which $3,630,000 was provided for the latter half of May. Earl administration leaders sought $11,000,000 for six weeks of May and June; Republicans backed a $9,500,000 total for the same period and a compromise was reached at $3,630,000 for May only.

Although the reduced amount was provided by an emergency resolution, a bill legalizing the expenditure remains before the senate—assured of final approval tonight.

Heralding this week's legislative battle, State Treasurer Charles A. Waters, Republican, has declined to vote with the Democratic majority of the state emergency relief board on a June allocation of $6,931,446. The three Democratic members of the board approved that estimate by S. E. R. B. Director Karl De Schweinitz, with the prospect that an appropriation of the same amount will be submitted to the legislature. The figure is approximately half a million dollars above the estimated expenditures for May—$6,471,620.

secretary of the company, pleaded no defense. This will leave his fate in the hands of Judge Schoonmaker. Frank Bradour, described as an office employe who "knew nothing of the company's operations," pleaded not guilty. U. S. District Attorney Charles F. Uhl stated he would petition the attorney general in Washington to continue Bradour's case indefinitely. It was indicated Bradour, as a victim of circumstances who intended no illegality, would never be prosecuted.

Two other men, Joseph A. Smith and L. Williamson, said to be minor figures in the company, are still at large and sought on fugitive warrants.

The Atlantic Drug & Chemical company, it was charged, operated in 1930, remaining in operation shortly less than a year. During that time, it was said, the executive offices of the company had its headquarters in luxuriously-outfitted rooms in a Pittsburgh office building.

With the Pittsburgh office as the base of operations, company salesmen were alleged to have canvassed the western part of the state, selling large blocks of stock on the basis the company held all patent rights to a certain popular medicine.

The company, it was further alleged, went so far as to pay dividends for a time, thus, according to the government, luring additional "prospects" into the fold.

The indictments acted upon in today's court action were sworn out by 26 alleged victims of the fraud, and all defendants in court were indicted on each count on Nov. 15, 1931.

Several New Castle men were among investors summoned to testify in the case.

We often think how lucky the consumers are, that the states, counties and cities do not own the public utility companies who furnish us with water, light, heat and so forth, for in case they did, and an interruption occurred in the service, in all likelihood the consumer would suffer while the politicians were arguing which one would have the authority to restore the service. Also, in all probability, every time the politicians changed office the experienced help would be retired and inexperenced help placed in charge.

Happiest homes are those where the dining table still is considered more important than the card table.

Following the serving of the menu an informal social period will be featured.

PRICE-GEORGE MARRIAGE NEWS

The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents, on Saturday evening, May 23, at 8 o'clock with Rev. Fred Smith of the First Free Methodist church officiating, in the presence of the immediate families. The couple was attended by Miss Gula Price, sister of the bride, and Russell George, brother of the groom.

The bride was becomingly attired in white, and carried pink rose buds and lily of the valley.

Mr. and Mrs. George are both graduates of the local high school, classes of 1930 and 1934 respectively. They will reside at 813 Arlington avenue, Canton, Ohio, where Mr. George is employed at the Canton Tin Plate Company.

The meeting planned for O. E. A. club associates Wednesday in the home of Mrs. William Dukes, Park avenue, has been postponed for a period of two weeks.

C. S. Club

Mrs. William Irwin of Castlewood will entertain members of the C. S. club Wednesday at her home.

BRIDE-ELECT GUEST OF HONOR AT SHOWER

Honoring Martha Matthews of the Edenburg-Pulaski road, a bride-elect of the summer, the Misses Margaret Leonhardt and Roberta Sedwick entertained jointly at a miscellaneous shower recently in the home of Miss Leonhardt on Cunningham avenue.

Bridge was the chief diversion and prizes were won by Elma Robinson and Elizabeth Wallace. At a later hour refreshments were served in the dining room, the colors of pink and yellow were beautifully carried out, with a large bowl of snapdragons centering the table and narow ribbons leading in shower effect from the chandelier to the places, marked with corsages in the predominating colors.

Special guests were Mrs. J. S. Matthews and Mrs. J. E. Sedgwick.

Miss Matthews received many lovely gifts.

CUPID'S COMEBACK

AN exhaustive survey of national recovery, just completed by William F. Ogburn, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago, reveals that marriages deferred during the lean years now are being solemnized.

Already, says the professor, the increased marriage rate is beginning to show in various ramifications of our national life. There is an increased birthrate, for one thing. And, incidentally, there are definite commercial benefits accruing from the increased needs of young couples.

Even waving aside its commercial aspects, the trend is most encouraging. The repeated postponement of marriages in the last five years constituted one of the great silent tragedies of the depression.

The return to normalcy, so to speak, is very welcome.

THE LETTER CARRIER'S HOLIDAY

The Ohio letter carrier who has been discovered spending his two weeks' vacation with a party of hikers touring New York state seems to be contributing his bit to the unwritten chronicles of vocational devotion made famous by the holidaying busman and the fireman who passed his days off in the stoke hole of a ship.

However, the letter carrier who walks in freedom for two weeks as a diversion from his routine rounds may have something in common with vacationing fugitives from business, who burrow most of the day in the stock exchange tables and devote summer resort nights to ordeals at bridge tables.

NEW PRISON PLAN PROJECTED

Kentucky may in time become the "model prison" state, if plans approved by federal and state officials are carried out successfully.

A $14,000,000, 10-year program is contemplated, to provide for an entirely new approach to the whole vital problem of prisons and charitable institutions. The keystone of the project would be rehabilitation. Treatment of each prisoner would be prescribed with a view to "salvaging" the individual for society.

The vast project encompasses plans to classify inmates as dangerous, less dangerous, and tractable. Separate wards would be provided for each class, and useful work found for those eligible.

The plan, Kentucky officials claim, is a major step away from the existing "universities of crime." It will be interesting to see just how it works out.

WILL WATCH WISCONSIN EXPERIMMENT

The remark is frequently heard on Sundays and holidays, when motor car traffic is very heavy on the highways, that "all these trucks ought to be kept off the roads on such days."

There is much of merit in this point of view of the motorists. But there is also considerable to be said against such a proposal from the other side of the picture, the viewpoint of the truck owner.

It is with considerable interest, therefore, that the motoring population will watch the experiment soon to begin in Wisconsin, where trucks are to be barred from the highways over week-ends.

The entire matter is a delicate one, involving as it does the question as to whether state-built highways are meant primariiy for motoring roads, or whether the collection of taxes from truck owners and drivers make the highways partly freight transportation lines. It will be exceedingly interesting to see how the Wisconsin experiment works out.

MORE JOY IN RUSSIA

It is with almost bewildering swiftness that bits of news come from Soviet Russia significant of great changes in the mental attitude of the people, whose natural instincts have so long been repressed by the rigid regime of the nation's rulers.

Particularly illuminating were the news reports of the resurgence of the spirit of religious devotion as manifested through the crowding of churches which Stalin's government permitted to be open on Easter Sunday. For seventeen years every governmental policy in Russia has been designed to obliterate the spirit of religion from the hearts of the Russian people.

Of a more trivial character but significant, none the less, is the news report from Moscow telling how Stalin was surrounded by three thousand women, the wives and children of industrial plant managers, who sang gay songs in his honor and showered him with flowers.

Gradually, now that the Soviet government is on firm ground and secure against the machinations of malcontents at home and ambitious neighbors with acquisitive tendencies, life in Russia is becoming more joyous and not many years will pass without a restoration of bourgeoise ideals common to the life of other nations.

BOOKS SURVIVE

The Booksellers Association's sessions closed in New York on a cheerful key. For despite the warnings of some of the prophets that new mechanical entertainment will oust the reading of books from its premier position, the disaster has not happened. Books are being bought and read in increasing numbers, despite the horsemen of distraction that waylay the reader. Assailed from the air in his armchair and tempted from his book by the automobile and the movies, the constant reader has kept his eyes on the printed page.

Cheaper prices for books have expanded the market and made available to the reading public volumes which a higher price would bar. in following this trend books have pursued a policy of economic orthodoxy that fits in well with their long established tradition. This has been especially the case with serious works, even more than with novels.

This Brookings Institution remedy, of lower prices and expanding markets, has gone to even further lengths in the European book trade than here, but it is making increasing strides on this side of the Atlantic.

The booksellers looked with suspicion upon lists of "bestsellers" put out to canalize the buying inclinations of the reading public. The merchant of books needs to know his customers even more than does the shopkeeper in other lines. A canned list offends that individuality that hedges a bood lover. Individuality in taste is the peculiar distinction of books, as it is of the theatre, and regimented entertainment cannot storm this rampart.

The "teacup gun" is described as a sensational development in the oil industry. The Teacup Dome was, too.

Much of the news from Washington these days concerns debates on taxes. It would be a bigger story if someone abated them.

England has a "Buy English" policy and likes it.

As regards the "trade or war" fiat, everybody intelligent enough to be out of the insane asylum knows that recent wars have been based on trade. England turned against Germany, toward France, when Germany began taking away British trade in Mexico, South America, and elsewhere and too many articles marked "Made in Germany" were sold in England.

A "BUM" CHECK

A man came to see me a couple of years ago and said he'd spent all his money and needed a few dollars. . . . Would I guarantee his check for $5? . . . I didn't know him, but I knew who he was and I'd seen him occasionally with a friend of mine. . . . So I took his check down to the cigar stand, signed my name on it, too, and gave him the money. . . . He was very thankful. . . . I said it was nothing, it didn't cost ME anything.

But it did . . . because the check came back and I never saw that man again. I know his name, I know the little town he lives in, but I haven't done anything about it. . . . What good would it do me? He's just a petty swindler and he hasn't the money, and I couldn't get it out of him. . . . And I've heard that everybody in town knows what he's like and he has to go out of town to do his little thieving.

I know about him now and then, however . . . and whenever I do, I appreciate how he narrows his life whenever he passes one of those little worthless checks. . . . He has to check off one more human being on his memory, one more individual whom he must never meet face to face, whom he must duck away from if he encounters him on the street. Little by little, walls close in upon him. . . . So what he did must bother him more than it can ever bother me.

What troubles me—as it probably troubles nearly everybody else—are the "bum checks" we pass at various times in our life on people who thought us better than we are. I mean the false impressions, the small treasons, the mistakes, the meannesses, the cruelties, the neglects, the disloyalties. . . . Nearly all of us are guilty of these "bum checks"—and they are the ones that hurt.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

PERHAPS

The Military wisacres ever since November 1918 have been trying to determine who won the War and the question has not been satisfactorily answered by any military man, as yet.

Ever since a certain day in November of 1929, politicians have been trying to fasten the cause of the great Depression upon the Federal government.

As a matter of fact, the Federal government has nothing whatsoever to do with the Depression. The American people brought it upon themselves with their endless extravagances. While today the present government in Washington is being accused of great extravagance, in the Roaring Twenties the whole American people were extravagant. Getting right down to a particular reason for the Depression, the automobile is probably responsible for all of our financial troubles.

When the automobile was first placed upon the market, it was sold for cash. Only the well-to-do people were able to buy the machine and what a sight of trouble. Those who were not so well-to-do, began to mortgage their homes to obtain money with which to buy an automobile, but it wasn't long until the automobile manufacturers discovered that he could profitably sell an automobile on the installment plan, and right there the great installment market of America began. Everything was sold for a nickel down and a nickel forever until in 1929, the American citizen had mortgaged everything but his immortal soul, with which to purchase an automobile, an electric refrigerator, an electric washing machine, a radio and a thousand and one things that were sold in this manner. Pay day was upon that famous November day in 1929. There was not enough money with which to pay then and there is not yet enough money with which to pay.

TODAY'S STORYETTE

An itinerant musician was stranded in a village one Sunday morning. As he was playing his cornet in the street, he was approached by the clergyman of the parish, who said: "The Fourth Commandment, my good man?"

"No," the musician replied, "but if you will just whistle it over, I'll do my best."

The goal of the defense is to get one stubborn man on the jury.

There are still people getting married without going through the formality of a divorce and also men driving automobiles without a driver's license. Both are very bad.

To be a success a romance has to be nimble enough to hurdle the rough spots.

Riding in an automobile with a driver who has no driver's license isn't so good either.

A Steubenville, O., man sued a dairy company for $100,000 because one of it's trucks ran over him and he lost a leg and had other injuries. The jury gave him $50,000. That kind of verdicts will make more careful drivers.

Now science tells us that we absorb nourishment through the skin. The dirt on Willie should be good rich soil.

Inefficiency and lack of experience cost the taxpayers of this country millions of dollars every year. Every time there is a political appointment or even an election to an office those who get the jobs as a rule don't know a thing about them and the taxpayer pays for the training.

Whenever men gather to discuss tax levies, property owners bare their neck for the blow.

A woman in San Francisco bit a policeman and it was not one of those love nips either. It took a chunk out.

MALE AUTO DEATHS HIGHEST

Probably it is because the male sex is more venturesome, but reports of insurance statisticians show the automobile death rate for boys up to the age of 14 to be two and a half times that of girls of the same age and that of adult males to exceed adult females by three and a half. But the youngsters are apparently more careful than the grown folks. In 1934 the automobile accidental death rate for boys of the above age was 19.4 per 100,000 and for girls, 7.5, while it was 46.0 for male adults compared to 13.0 for females.

There was less heart failure in the old days. Men of 50 didn't think exercise would make them young again.

The guide was conducting a party of tourists through the City Hall. "It was in this room that George Washington received his first commission," he explained.

"How much commission did he get?" inquired one of the tourists, who is all for keeping the profits out of war.

If this year is a flop it is your fault and mine.

IN DEFENSE OF YOUTH

New forms rise and old faiths fuse—
Youth is choosing as only youth can choose;
Old temples sound with shouts of younger gods,
While dead forms fade as fade the seedless pods.

I hear the singing of heartening hymns;
I see new wings upon the ancient seraphim;
Aged altars are alight with fadeless fires;
And breathless music bursts from newborn choirs.

In every ancient field digs ardent youth,
Forever searching for the immemorial truth,
While age with empty jar nods and dwells
Far in the desert of the long forgotten wells. —Selected.

This "bull" occurs also in 2 Kings XIX, 35.

RELIEFITEERS

In the welter of suggestions as to how America's relief problem can best be solved, one presented by a Portland, Ore., city father seems unusually sound: Concluding that as a result of too wide-spread dole operation, "being on relief" no longer carries the stigma it once did, this thinker believes there are far too many unemployed who prefer to live on the state rather than be independent. "They're racketeers," growls the gentleman "and they need to be shown how un-American their attitude is." So up in his home town they don't give relief work a pride-salving title, they baldly call it "The Pauper Fund." We'd be surprised, says the Portlander, how quickly a lot of reliefiteers got off the rolls when that name was adopted!

As a rule the important letter comes the next day after one gets through looking for it.

By FRANCINE MARKEL

DEAR MISS MARKEL: Mother thinks I am too young to go automobile riding with my young friends. I am 15. I feel very bad when I am forced to decline the boys' invitations to take a ride with them. Do you think mother is right in this decision? What excuse can I give the boys? I do not like to say: "My mother won't allow me to go." LULU.

Answer: Young girls about your age are tired of hearing the same old saw: "Mother knows best." But really, Lulu, she does know best. She knows that most young boys are irresponsible and reckless drivers. She values your life too much to entrust you to the mercies of boys who take great delight in showing off when they sit behind the steering wheel of an automobile.

It is difficult at your age to realize the anguish mothers suffer when their "baby" daughters reach the boy-crazy stage and think that every one over 25 is too doddering and old-fashioned to understand modern youth.

Of course, I realize that girls of 15, in this day and age, should not be expected to sit at home embroidering and studying, with no thought of fun. Have your young friends—both boys and girls. Entertain them at your home and keep your mother from worrying herself sick.

Do not be ashamed of the fact that you have a mother who watches over you and gives you advice. She is only trying to keep you from becoming jaded and too sophisticated before you are really grown up. You will thank her for it in later years. And the boys will respect you all the more for having that kind of mother.

Bill Brings Storm.
Bankruptcy Act Held Unfair.
Would Assist Utilities Most.

By LESLIE EICHEL
Central Press Staff Writer

VIGILANCE is necessary in congress to prevent passage of bills harmful to the people.

Recently, a bill to amend the bankruptcy act was introduced in the house by Representative Randolph Perkins, Republican, of New Jersey. It was reported from the house committee on judiciary and was passed by the house. Thence it went to the senate, which sent it to the committee on judiciary.

The law now permits three creditors owning $1,000 or more of debt of a corporation to file a petition in bankruptcy and cause reorganization proceedings. The bill changed that. It provided that the three creditors must own at least 5 per cent of the total indebtedness.

Undoubtedly the existing law permits unscrupulous attacks on corporations and this brought about approval by the house of some change. Apparently, however, few members realized what 5 per cent of the indebtedness meant. It virtually meant immunity for inside interests in very large corporations, for it is a practical impossibility to get together persons owning 5 per cent in order to bring reorganization proceedings.

For example, the 1934 figures of Associated Gas & Electric Co., of which Howard C. Hopson is the dominating force, showed a total bonded debt of approximately $268,000,000.

Five per cent would mean that creditors would have to collect $13,000,000 or so of debt in order to bring reorganization proceedings. The Associated Gas is mentioned because of proceedings already under way against it.

AN AMENDMENT

Senator Frederick Van Nuys of Indiana, chairman of the subcommittee of the judiciary committee which considered the bill, offered an amendment to the bill on the floor of the senate which later created a storm among liberals. That amendment would make the bill apply to all petitions under existing Section 77, Paragraph B, of the bankruptcy law, where petitions were filed prior to the effective date of this mandatory act and where petitions had not been approved prior to that date.

Bondholders of the Associated Gas & Eelctric have proceedings pending in federal court in New York to compel reorganization and to remove the existing Hopson management. The management has delayed action for more than a year. The amendment to the bill in the senate would compel bondholders to obtain 5 per cent of creditors' claims before they could continue the action against Associated if the federal court made no decision prior to the effective date of this amending act.

Liberals, who accidentally stumbled on the measure, asserted Hopson in some manner had seen that this amendment was put up.

Senate leaders thereupon recalled the measure—and everyone, including persons closely concerned, expresses ignorance of the bill.

But the bill came within a hair's breadth of passing.

STATEMENT ATTACKED

In the meantime, the statement of the Associated Gas & Electric for 1935 has been subjected to severe New Deal scrutiny.

For that statement discloses expenses of $1,810,246 in connection with the corporation's fight on the Wheeler-Rayburn holding company bill as well as legal cases and "investigations." Part of the fight was the sending of telegrams with faked names. The legal cases happen to be the management's resistance to efforts of the bondholders to oust the management and force reorganization—the bondholders assert. They add that thus it is investors' money which is fighting investors.

But the New Dealers chiefly are interested in the fact that this large sum as well as "expenses of $1,150,274 in connection with re-arrangement of debt capitalization, was charged to corporate surplus. Likewise, other expenses were charged to corporate surplus. By this means, the company showed a small operating surplus for the year instead of a loss. In other words, the figures have been arranged—in a legal manner—to show a bright picture instead of one not so bright.

Now, investors are crying that the government still has not got strong enough laws to protect investors.

A TRUSTEE SUES

In the meantime, creditors of the vast Van Sweringen interests finally have demanded action—in regard to one transaction at least.

Guy A. Thompson, acting trustee in bankruptcy for the Missouri Pacific railroad, has filed suit in federal court in Cleveland demanding the return of $3,200,000 which the Missouri Pacific, under Van Sweringen domination, paid on account for terminal properties to Terminal Shares, Inc. Terminal Shares had charged the Missouri Pacific a mere $20,000,000 for these terminal properties, but bankruptcy and court action stopped further payments after $3,200,000 had been collected.

Mr. Thompson asserts in his petition to the court that O. P. Van Sweringer and associates used the Missouri Pacific as a "puppet" to recoup their losses in other ventures.

Mr. Thompson adds that the terminal properties are "practically worthless."

Mr. Thompson's petition charges further that Terminal Shares, Inc., is insolvent financially and that the financial condition of Alleghany Corporation, a senior Van Sweringen holding company, is such that a judgment against it would be of little value. Thus the suit was brought against individuals.

Congressional investigation of the various Van Sweringen holding companies is blocked by failure of the senate's auditing and finance committee to report out to the senate floor an appropriation of $100,000 for the interstate commerce committee's investigating body. That is the case even though all 20 members of the senate's interstate commerce committee voted for the sum to carry on the investigation.

You're wrong if you believe that seamen have a superstition that it's bad luck for the captain of a vessel to take his wife along on a voyage. Capt. Gonthier of the S. S. Jean Jadot, says it isn't so. The captains may encourage the idea among their wives, though. As a matter of fact, if a captain's wife sails with him, seamen are likely to prefer the boat, for it means that the ship is more comfortable than most.

Negro Attacker Has Confessed Chicago Crime

Thomas Starr, 29, Rag Picker Confesses Killing Woman In Y. W. C. A. Hotel

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, May 25.—A preview of a sensational feature film was planned today by acting chief of detectives, Walter Storms—a preliminary to a posible showing of the movie before an audience of 12 jurors.

If Storms and Dr. Leonard Keeler, director of the Northwestern University crime detection laboratory, who directed and produced the motion picture, have done their work well, the thriller may send its lone actor, Thomas Starr, 29-year-old negro rag picker, to the elcetric chair for the Y. W. C. A. murder of Mrs. Lillian D. Guild, May 9.

The negro, who confessed the brutal killing Saturday night, re-enacted the crime for the benefit of the movie cameras at the Young Women's Christian Association Hotel on South Michigan boulevard yesterday afternoon.

Pictures Taken

The movie was taken to prove the truth of the rag picker's confession, Chief Storms explained today, and for courtroom projection in case he should attempt to repudiate the confession before the trial jury.

Starr was arrested when he answered descriptions of the "ape man" who entered the nursing home of St. Luke's hospital the night of May 14 and attempted to attack Miss Lois Rickert of Detroit, a student nurse. He confessed the attack attempt, then repudiated his confession, finally confessed again.

A blood-stained necktie found in his room led to his confesing the slaying of Mrs. Guild, detective chief Storms said. The detective declared Starr said he had burned the rest of the blood-smeared clothing he wore that night, but forgot the necktie.

promoting jobs for Japanese, Chinese, Belgians, Englishmen and others is, at least, amusing.

BUSINESS MEN of Toledo, Ohio, favoring the old-fashioned idea that to promote prosperity in America we should spend here the mony that is earned here, give this interesting information:

"Japan produced more window glass last year than the United States, Belgium, or any other country." John D. Biggers, president of the Libby-Owens-Ford Glass company, brought the information from Japan, where he "participated in the construction of a new plate glass plant at Yokkaichi.

Here is the milk in the cocoanut, as reported by Mr. Biggers:

"A skilled Japanese worker delivers 15 to 16 hours of work for the same wage that the American worker get for ONE hour."

The skilled Japanese is 15 to 16 times cheaper than the American. Let free traders jump that hurdle.

Also, let it be remembered that the Japanese worker is a vary hard worker.

IF YOU CAN hire 15 to 16 hours of Japanese work for the cost of ONE hour of American work, what do you think would happen to the glass industry of America if there were no tariff protection for American workers?

If you really can create jobs for Americans, unemployed, by making them compete with labor at one-fifteenth of American wages, that is something new in political ecenomy.

TAKE AWAY the tariff and not a ton of steel, square foot of glass, pair of shoes, bicycle, or anything else, that foreign countries can make, would be manufactured in this country.

You would add millions to the number already unemployed, and discover that a nation of 130,000,000 cannot live on the payrolls of moving pictures and automobile factories.

AMERICAN industrialists, most resourceful in the world, could start plants in other countries, and prosper; intelligence protects itself anywhere. But who would hire American workers thrown out of American factories.

AT PORTSMOUTH, O., 5,500 steel workers leave their jobs, demanding 50 per cent increase in wages, and recognition of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

The 5,000 are interested in today's free trade movement. If free trade should come, there would be no steel workers in Portsmouth, O., or anywhere else in the United States, and no "Amalgamated Association" of steel workers. Instead, there would be a couple of million more men, out of work, looking for a dole.

YOU READ about adobe bricks, taken from an old mission building in California, warmed in hot paraffin at 195 degrees centigrade, found to contain in one tiny gram of adobe clay "tens of millions of living microbes." The misroscopic microbes have been living in that adobe brick since they were locked up in the mission wall, 169 years ago. That makes more difficult the job that awaits modern man, who some day must rid the world of deadly bacteria, more dangerous than mammoths, wolves and poisonous snakes, destroyed in the past.

FOLLOWING a leak of information concerning income tax increases, by which stock gamblers and others made large sums, J. H. Thomas, England's colonial secretary, resigns from the British cabinet, under pressure. There is no proof that Mr. Thomas was knowingly responsible for the leak, but his resignation was inevitable, unfortunately for the labor movement in England. J. H. Thomas is a former engine driver, and a labor leader.

King Edward was "graciously pleased" to accept Mr. Thomas' resignation; certain "aristrocratic" circles in England, who consider a non-aristrocratic labor man unfit to share in government, will be delighted that a scandal of this kind, unknown for centuries, should be attached to a member of the Labor party and the so-called "lower classes."

WISE OLD England, feverishly building more fighting planes, offering bonuses, free funds, for new factories, takes seriously the various dangers, Mussolini to the south, Germany to the east, Russia and Japan farther on.

Knowing that a few well directed bombs might block the Suez canal, most important link in the highway of the British Empire. England considers fortifying Cape Town harbor, the other route to the East.

The more you have the more you worry, and England has many defense worries in connection with her great empire. We have worries also, but we seem able to forget them. We may be reminded of them later.

Fires Broadside At Dr. Townsend

Committee Prosecutor Charges Townsend's Walkout Part Of Conspiracy

DR. TOWNSEND IS STILL DEFIANT

By ROBERT G. NIXON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 25.—The silence that has enshrouded the congressional committee investigating the Townsend Old Age Pension movement since its "Messiah," Dr. Francis E. Townsend, stalked from the hearing in angry defiance, was shattered today as James R. Sullivan, committee prosecutor, fired an accusative broadside at the fleeing pensionite.

Fretting at the committee's delay in asking the house to cite the 70-year-old California doctor for contempt, Sullivan charged Townsend's walkout was "part of a conspiracy" to obtain funds to replenish a dwindling treasury and accused him of "deception" in his federal income tax return.

Startling Accusations

Other startling accusations by Sullivan included:

1. That because of committee revelations that Townsend had solicited a congressional lobbying fund from his aged supporters under circumstances Sullivan branded as use of the mails to defraud, and "other devastating exposures," Townsend was afraid to submit to further questioning.

2. That Townsend's national weekly has advertised communistic doctrines.

3. That Townsend has dared the committee to have him tried for contempt in order to make him a martyr in a "ruse" whereby congress can be used as a sounding board for his profitable dreams."

As Sullivan assailed Dr. Townsend, it was learned the Post Office Department is prepared to investigate the mail fraud charges on the committee's request with the possibility that either Dr. Townsend or some of his lieutenants might face criminal proceedings.

A post office department spokesman said:

"Chairman Bell has been informed that the inspection division is ready to proceed with an investigation whenever his committee submits any evidence of irregularities."

The committee, it was learned, will ask the house to cite Townsend for contempt and Speaker Byrns predicted the house would vote the citation.

To Meet Tuesday

The committee will meet Tuesday to decide whether to ask trial by the house or in the district court. Administration leaders insist on trial in the court as house action would delay adjournment of congress and also put the house on the spot by making individual members declare Townsend "guilty" or "not guilty."

The pension leader, from his Baltimore refuge, declared the committee in the two and a half days of questioning him had had "ample time" to present their case.

He clung firmly to his declaration that he would "rot in jail" before he would again appear before the committee.

Despite an appeal by Townsend to five lieutenants to follow his course of defiance and refuse to answer committee subpoenas, one of them, Dr. Clinton Wunder, of New York, eastern regional manager, informed Bell he would be ready to answer questions.

Sullivan also declared he would read into the committee records further evidence to support his contention that the Townsend Old Age Pension movement is a "racket" and that the promise of $200 a month pensions is being used to delude the old folks into contributing funds to make Townsend and his associates rich.

"If he returns for questioning he will be confronted with such documentary proof, which he cannot deny, that his fantastic stories in the past will not stand," said Sullivan.

The completion of the Grand Coulee dam, located 90 miles northwest of Spokane, will open up a wide territory to cultivation, according to Mr. Woods. Not alone will power be generated but the possibilities through managed irrigation are tremendous.

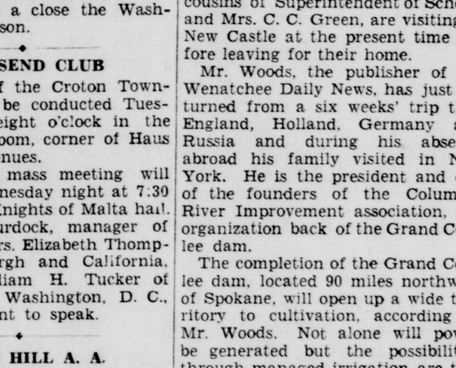

With Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Green, Mr. Woods and his family were the guests of Fred L. Rentz, president of The News, today on an inspection trip through the plant.

The Child Study class conducted at the Y. W. C. A. each Tuesday afternoon from 2 to 3 o'clock is proving very interesting to the group of young matrons. They discuss such diversified problems as "How Much Allowance Should a Child Be Given?" "How to Stop Thumb Sucking," and "How Much Should Parents Guide the Children?"

This class, which is open to all mothers, is directed by Miss Lillie Braham, of the Government Adult Education Program.

Members also discussed, at the Friday night meeting, ways and means by which to send delegates to the East Central Business Girls Conference which is to be held at Wells College, Aurora, N. Y., July 25 to August 1.

BLUE TRIANGLE CLUB

The Blue Triangle club had its bi-weekly dinner-meeting in the Y. W. C. A. Friday evening.

HANEY'S

OPPOSITE POST OFFICE — ON THE PUBLIC SQUARE

WASHINGTON AT A GLANCE

Rate Couzens As Independent

Won't Oppose Roosevelt's Re-Election, But Will Run On Republican Ticket

HATES SYSTEM BUT LIKES MEN

Central Press
Washington Bureau
1900 S street

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 25—Senator James Couzens of Michigan probably is the richest man in public life.

And when he feels like it, as generally he does, he is one of the most politico-economically liberal. Occasionally, however, he takes what the progressives consider the conservative side of some national question They say he is erratic. His version is that he is independent. He certainly is.

The progressives in congress greatly like him, but when he is opposing them he makes them angrier than the reactionaries do. They expect opposition from the reactionaries, but they cannot understand it, coming from him.

HATES SYSTEM, NOT MEN

He consorts socially with plutocrats too.

"It's a mystery to me," Senator George W Norris of Nebraska said to him, "how you can associate with such folk—play golf with them, for example; treat them as friends."

I know that Senator Norris made this remark; Senator Couzens told me so.

"But," explained the Wolverine statesman, "it is the plutocrats' system that I hate; I don't hate individuals. I don't hate even Andy Mellon personally."

However, he fought the ex-secretary of the treasury bitterly when the later was in office.

F. D. R.'S POPULARITY

The senator also told why, in his opinion, President Roosevelt is so popular.

"I realize," he conceded, 'that many Rooseveltian policies are impossible; that many of his advisers are impractical theorists; that administratively his system is terrible. But he is the only president in my time who ever has had a heart-throb of sympathy with the under-privileged—the common man.

"He has plans that won't work, but they can be licked into workability; at least they're a start.

'The old-time conservative philosophy has been, 'Let the rich grow richer; the more bread they have on their tables, the more crusts will be brushed off for the poor to pick up from the floor.'

"I believe in an evener break, for all the people, than that."

REMAINS REPUBLICAN

Senator Couzens accordingly will not oppose Roosevelt's re-election. Positively not.

Yet he will run for the senate as a Republican.

The Michigan Democrats would be glad to put him on their ticket. They have endorsed him among others.

"I'll come back," says the senator, 'as a Republican or not at all.

"Why?

"Well, as a Democrat I'd lose my seniority. On all committee assignments I'd go down to the foot of the list."

A SENIOR G. O. P.

The senator is senior Republican on the powerful interstate commerce and banking and currency committees.

As senior, even of the minority, he has a potent voice—all the more so because, as an independent, although a nominal Republican, the majority has, in considerable measure, to defer to him. As a junior Democrat he wouldn't speak with the same authority.

It may seem queer but it is parliamentary precedent.

A NOTABLE RECORD

"And all the fun I've had in Washington," added the senator, "has been in committee rooms.

"I'm not an orator on the floor. 'My activities don't appear in the official record."

Senator Couzens is mistaken in this respect; he has a notable record.

The famous horses of St. Mark, large bronze statues near the cathedral in Venice, have held positions in four cities. They were brought to Venice in 1204 A. D. from Constantinople. Napoleon carried them to Paris as trophies of his Italian campaign. After his defeat in 1815 they were returned to Venice, but during the World War they were removed to Rome to safeguard them.

Fear Is Sometimes An Aid To Courage

You can have courage and still be "afraid" at the same time.

If you doubt it, ask Mrs. Harriet Beatty, wife of the world-famous animal trainer, Clyde Beatty, coming here Friday, May 29th with the great Cole Bros.-Clyde Beatty circus.

She has plenty of courage—she had to in order to face a snarling lion, a vigious tiger and a temperamental elephant—at the same time in a small cage twice a day.

"Sure I'm afraid," said the very pretty, very blond and very petite Mrs. Beatty, in a recent interview. "But I just have to make the best of it."

At that point, Clyde broke in with an explanation. You've got to have a certain amount of fear, he explained, otherwise you'd become over-confident and then . . . well, it's happened before to Clyde. The scars he carries prove it.

On the other hand, Mrs. Beatty interposed, you mustn't let the animals even sense that you are frightened.

Mrs. Beatty has her own definition of courage. It is "the state of facing danger knowing what is liable to happen and of being prepared to meet any emergency as best one can."

How did she get into the "animal end of the game"? Well, it was like this. Five years ago she met Clyde. For three years she watched him and came to like him—and his snarling pack of "big cats".

And so they were married! Shortly afterward, Mrs. Beatty decided she'd like to quit flying through air—with or without the greatest of ease—and go in for the more "exciting" business of taming animals.

AROUND CITY HALL

It is not exactly known when the actual paving of streets in the A program will get under way. Stone is being quarried. The gutters will be put in first, according to City Engineer Glenn R. Throop.

Pitt Co-ed Attends 13 Schools Before College

(Special To The News)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 25.—Going to 13 schools in as many years 'chops up education", according to Daphne Margaret Land, University of Pittsburgh freshman. And Miss Land ought to know, for she attended 13 different schools in preparation for college.

Born in England of an English mother and an American father of Swedish ancestry, Miss Land spent the first five years of her life in Maidenhead, 30 miles from London. While her parents traveled in Europe, she divided her time between France and England, living with her grandmother or her aunt. When she was six she was placed in a boarding school outside of Paris.

Then she went with her aunt to the Isle of Wight and attended a grade school there, returning later to France and another school. Christmas vacations were spent with relatives in Sweden, just to add to the variety of her experiences.

Miss Land started high school at Saint Germain, but returned to England once more and became a student in a convent school at Carlbrook, where King Charles was imprisoned. She was graduated from high school at her birthplace, Maidenhead, England, and soon afterwards came with her parents to the United States. Here she started a business course in a Brooklyn school, but moved to Springfield, Mass., soon afterward, and continued her studies there.

She came to Pittsburgh three years ago, took a position as a governess and French teacher, enrolled for evening classes at a city high school and entered the University last fall. She is taking a pre-medical course, and hopes Pittsburgh will be her permanent home.

Senate Body Probing WPA

Will Investigate Administration And Expenditures Of WPA In State

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, May 25.—Given to understand by State Administrator Edward N. Jones that the WPA "cannot and will not be tried by a fixed jury," an investigating committee of the Republican controlled state senate prepared today to open hearings on administration and expenditures of the works progress administration.

The committee, named to carry out terms of a resolution sponsored by Sen. G. Mason Owlett, Tioga Republican, was expected to summon Jones and others of his staff, with their books and records, for appearance at the hearings.

Denies Charges

Jones made a week-end denial of senate charges that the WPA is politically dominated and warned that WPA would submit to none but an "impartial" inquiry. His statement was contained in a letter to Sen. Frederick T. Gelder, chairman of the senate appropriations committee, who had requested personnel information on the WPA.

Democrats in both houses of the legislature have objected to the WPA inquiry on the grounds WPA is a federal, not a state agency. Republicans, meanwhile, indicated they would subpoena Jones and other WPA officials, with a court test hinted should they refuse to appear.

Direct Relief Load Is Lighter By 1,814 Cases

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, May 25.—A net reduction of 1,814 cases in the direct relief load during the week ending May 16 was reported today by the state emergency relief board. Offsetting the effect of recent WPA employment curtailment, the reduction was attributed to seasonal gains in private employment.

A total of 176,197 cases, or 594,462 persons, remained on direct relief rolls May 16, Karl De Schweinitz, relief director, reported. This was a reduction of 12,362 persons from the previous week.

Expenditures for direct relief grants totaled $1,245,629 during the week of May 16, a decrease of $60,071, it was added.

State To Demand Death Penalty In Slaying Of Loeb

JOLIET, Ill., May 25.—With the state prepared to demand death in the electric chair as his punishment, James Day, 21-year-old Stateville convict went on trial today for the razor murder of Richard (Dickie) Loeb on last January 28.

Assistant State's Attorneys Walter O. Herschbach and Charles J. McKeown were ready to hurl qualifying questions at 100 veniremen gathered in the packed Will county circuit courtroom.

The boyish-looking Day has confessed that around noon time on January 28, in a prison shower room adjoining the crowded mess hall he slashed at Loeb, co-perpetrator of the history-making Bobby Franks atrocity in Chicago in 1924, with a stolen razor until his victim was fatally wounded.

IN NEVADA

An English visiting a friend in Nevada suggested one morning shortly after his arrival that they take a stroll to a mountain visible from his friend's home.

With secret mirth, his host agreed, but after walking several hours, the Englishman was amazed to find the mountain apparently no nearer. Upon asking his friend how far the mountain was from them, he was astonished to learn that it was still 30 miles away. His host then explained that the Nevada air is so rare that distances are deceptive.

Returning home by a different route, they came to an irrigated field, and at the first ditch, the Englishman sat down, and to his host's surprise, began to remove his shoes.

"What on earth are you doing?" the host asked.

The Englishman, gravely contemplating the ditch, replied, "Why, I'm going to swim this river!"

Fine Members Of Religious Sect

Monessen Police Arrest 147 Of 'Jehovah's Witnesses' For Disturbing Peace

HAD PETITIONS AGAINST MAYOR

(International News Service)

MONESSEN, Pa., May 25.—Stiff and weary after a night spent in Monessen's 84 - prisoner-capacity jail, 147 men and women, members and sympathizers of the "Jehovah's Witnesses," a religious sect, appeared before Mayor James C. Gold here today, were fined $5 and costs each, and then paroled.

The 80 men and 67 women were separated and tried in two groups. They were fined for creating a public nuisance and violating an ordinance prohibiting soliciting on Sunday by going from door to door seeking signers to a petition condemning Gold for closing their school here.

The prisoners offered no defense. In tired fashion, one man read from the first few paragraphs of the bill of rights, (first ten amendments to the United States constitution) guaranteeing the right of petition, but apparently no one paid any attention to him.

Mayor Gold told the women:

"I didn't anticipate such a large number soliciting petitions on Sunday. I didn't like the idea of petitioners awakening people from bed. I realize that this is a very humiliating position to place you ladies in, but we have an ordinance prohibiting the disturbance of peace and we have to enforce it."

Hold Forest E. Campbell, Of College Hill For Fatal Auto Crash

(International News Service)

MONACA, Pa., May 25.—Forest E. Campbell of College Hill, Beaver Falls, was held for the coroner today in connection with the death of 24-year-old Elma Shively from injuries received when the car in which she was riding crashed into one driven by Campbell along the Monaca-Aliquippa highway.

A cruel twist of fate was injected into the accident when the first person on the scene was Miss Shively's brother, Roland, who told police he had been on his way to congratulate his sister on landing a WPA job after she had been unemployed for months.

Miss Marie Winkle, 20, driver of the car in which Miss Shively was riding, escaped with minor hurts.

Two Lose Lives In Plane Crackup

One Man Escapes Death As Plane Crashes And Then Burns Up In Montoursville

(International News Service)

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., May 25.—A lone survivor who crawled to safety as flames consumed his two companions, today was expected to supply the key to the cause of a plane crash in the heart of nearby Montoursville, adjacent to the Williamsport airport.

Flying low in an approach to the airport, the privately-owned plane struck a tree-top, crashed into a main street light standard and burst into flames. The party of three in the ship was enroute here from Scranton for the state meeting of the nights of Columbus.

The dead, identified by Michael Kovack, Scranton, who alone escaped, were Harold Garrett, Scranton, and Harold J. Fulweiler, Dunmore, former army pilot.

Exonerate Driver In Blake Death

Inquest Held By Mercer County Coroner Applegate In Schoolboy's Death

Clair E. Baker, of R. F. D. No. 4, Volant, was exonerated of blame in the death of Melville Blake, aged 15, Wilmington township school boy, who was struck by Baker's car, after Blake had alighted from a school bus near the Ligo school in Mercer county at an inquest held by Coroner W. C. Applegate, of Sharon, Saturday, in Mercer.

Witnesses testified that young Blake had run around the rear end of the bus into the path of Baker's car. Baker, it was stated, was not going at a high rate of speed.

Corp. G. F. Keck, of Mercer county highway patrol, stated that a state law prohibits passing a parked school bus from the rear, but does not prohibit cars passing from the front.

Other witnesses were Clyde and Gene Seybert and Dorothy Coryea, schoolmates of the auto victim, and Mrs. Clair Baker, wife of the driver.

Man Indicted In Wendel Kidnaping Is Taken By Death

Death Claims Harry Bleefeld, At His Home, Was Under Bail

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, May 25.—Death today had claimed Harry Bleefeld, 61, one of the five men indicted by the Kings County Grand Jury in connection with the abduction of Paul H. Wendel, disbarred Trenton lawyer, whose subsequently repudiated "confession" delayed Bruno Richard Hauptmann's execution 72 hours.

Bleefeld, who was at liberty in $7,500 bail, succumbed last night in Kings County hospital from a complication of diseases.

Ailing since his arrest more than a month ago, Bleefeld became critically ill Sunday of last week. Members of his family, including his son, Muarry, who is also under indictment in the Wendel case, were at his bedside when he died.

Fire Chief A. P. McIlwain took up his duties on his new job this morning, and this evening Earl E. Dart will take over the helm as assistant chief.

As the new officials moved up the ladder, several changes were made in the personnel of the department, former Chief James E. Thomas returning to his old post at No. 8, Assistant Chief George Harper will remain at Central station.

Hugh Horton, who was formerly stationed at the Second Ward station, came back from No. 6, and Carl White was transferred from Central station to No. 6.

Norman McFarland goes from No. 5 to the Fourth Ward department to fill the place formerly held by Assistant Chief Dart.

The day was a quiet one for the new chief, no fires having been reported over the week-end or this morning.

Midland Home Is Wrecked By Bomb

Home Of Chief Of Police Of Midland Steel Mill Is Bombed

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, May 25.—Robert Graham, Crucible Steel company police chief, his wife and three small children escaped injury today when a bomb exploded under their home at Midland, wrecking the porch, while they were asleep.

After a hurried investigation, authorities took Michael Stambula, 48-year-old Midland blacksmith, into custody in connection with the blast. They refused to disclose the reason for Stambula's detention other than that they wished to "question him".

Earlier, a dynamite blast wreaked $1,000 damage in the Log Cabin Inn, on Brodhead road. Police said they found a 15-foot fuse under the building.

Anyway, the depression taught us that a car's working parts aren't worn out merely because the fenders are dented.

Bible Class Has Anniversary Event Saturday Evening

Silver Anniversary Of Central Christian Men's Bible Class Observed

Twenty-five years ago the Loyal Men's Bible class of the Central Christian church was organized. It has grown steadily and continued active during its quarter century of existence, and on Saturday evening, in celebration of the silver anniversary, a large dinner-meeting was conducted in the church dining room.

A crowd of 125 people attended and the guest of special honor was Rev. D. P. Shafer, of Meadville, first teacher of the class and former pastor of the congregation.

The tureen dinner was served at 6 o'clock and this program followed:

Address of welcome—Miss Mary Scherger.

Singing of class song—Led by Matt Richards.

Selection by orchestra—Led by Clarence Frey.

Solo, "Open the Gates of the Temple"—Milton Shearer.

Roll call of members. This was an unusually impressive service and took the form of a combination tribute to the living members and memorial to the dead. A circle of amber and green lights had been arranged to represent charter members, living and dead; inside of the circle was an octagon of red lights signifying all members who had passed on.

Reading, "Perfect Through Faith"—Mrs. John Baynham.

Hymn, "Looking This Way"—Rev. and Mrs. T. B. Shearer.

Resume of the class history—Allen Leslie.

Selection by the orchestra.

Address, "Courage"—Rev. D. D. Shafer.

"God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

On the committee in charge of the anniversary event were John Baynham, Matt Richards and Clarence Frey.

Mrs. D. P. Shafer, wife of the first teacher, and well known to the Central Christian congregation, is quite ill at her home in Meadville, her friends were sorry to learn.

Parade Will Not Be Routed Through City Public Square

Mrs. W. C. Eckenrod of the shade tree commission in co-operation with the garden forum, today addressed council at their meeting in City Hall and requested that some effort be made to keep the public square park from being damaged when a circus comes here Friday. She said last year the work of months was ruined within a few minutes.

Mayor Charles E. McGrath told the representative that, anticipating damage, he had arranged so that the circus parade would not be routed through public square.

Mrs. Eckenrod also said that the compaign to make New Castle and Lawrence county a mecca for persons who like red bud trees has gotten under way. She said more than 1600 have been disposed of and within the next year or so between 5,000 and 10,000 will be planted, and believes, she stated, that within a few years this section may become as equally famous for its red bud trees as the Washington section is for Japanese cherry blossoms and Rochester, N. Y., district for lilacs.

Urges Medal For Amelia Earhart

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, May 25.—While the committee room resounded with the noise of her welcome in Oakland, California, by means of a dictaphone record, Rep. Tolan (D) of California today urged a house coinage subcommittee to approve a commemorative medal for Amelia Earhart Putnam.

The novel means of impressing upon the committee her achievement in flying from Hawaii to California in 18 1-4 hours was chosen by Tolan to add realism to the hearing.

He told the committee that Miss Earhart has a matchless record in aviation achievements, and that issuance of a gold medal would be applauded by women all over the country.

McClure Is Safe; Search Is Ended

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, May 25.—Richard F. McCulre, 24, an employe in the federal bureau of entomology and plant quarantine, today dispelled fears for his safety aroused by a report to police that he was missing.

McClure, a native of New Wilmington, Pa., later telephoned federal officials he was detained by work in checking Japanese beetles in Westmoreland county and had failed to report his whereabouts. J. K. Gould, agent in charge, asked police to make a search for McClure when he failed to return here on Saturday morning as expected. He had left last Wednesday by automobile.

SERVICES USHER IN MEMORIAL DAY SEASON IN CITY

peace was also made by Rev. C. B. Wingerd, in his address at the water services at North street bridge.

Clark Able To Attend

D. M. Clark, commander of Post 100, G. A. R., was the only Civil War veteran able to get out for the services this year. Only about five Civil War veterans now remain in Lawrence county, and Mr. Clark is one of the few able to get about.

Veterans and members of the patriotic organizations gathered at the city building, from whence they moved out to the North street bridge, headed by the fife and drum corps of the Sons of Union Veterans.

Dr. C. B. Wingerd, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church was the speaker at the water services, when the memory of those who lost their lives at sea was honored. These services were under the direction of the Ladies of the G. A. R.

The music at the bridge service was rendered by a chorus and orchestra from Union high school, directed by Robert A. Duff, music supervisor of the Union township schools.

Dr. Wingerd recalled the stirring days of the Civil War and the principles which brought about the struggle. He recalled the suffering which that struggle brought about in the years which followed, all of which he asserted could have been averted.

Sin, he said, had led to that struggle and sin today is stirring up another gigantic struggle which can only lead to a greater conflict than has ever before been fought, if the principles of righteousness are ignored. He expressed a hope, however, that peace might prevail.

He paid tribute to the memory of those who lost their lives at sea in the various wars in which this nation has participated.

Following Rev. Wingerd's address, the ritualistic service of the Ladies of the G. A. R. was presented, concluding with the strewing of flowers on the waters of Neshannock Creek as a tribute to the memory of those heroes who made the supreme sacrifice in the naval service of this country. Mrs. Minnie Mayers presided.

As the service drew to a close, a volley was fired by the uniformed rank of the Sons of Union Veterans, followed by taps, which was echoed back by a bugler stationed on the Washington street bridge. The buglers were Charles Marshall and Charles Harlan.

Memorial Service

The parade then reformed and marched to the First Baptist church where the veterans and members of the patriotic organizations participating were given a special section in the center of the auditorium.

Dr. Heaton, in his address to the veterans and their friends, said in part:

"One hundred and three-score years ago our forefathers brought forth on this continent a new nation conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. Six and seventy years ago we were engaged in a great Civil war, testing whether that nation or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, could long endure. Thirty and eight years ago, when Cuba rebelled against the tyranny of Spain, our great country, imbued from its birth with the spirit of liberty, championed the cause of the down-trodden, sent its army and its navy to the West Indies and to the islands of the Pacific, and in a few short months, drove the Spanish tyrant entirely from the Western hemisphere and then became sponsor of the Cuban Republic and acquired a vast empire in the islands of the Pacific ocean. Nineteen years ago the American government entered the World war in order to challenge the proposition that might makes right and to make this world a safe place for the principles of democracy.

"Now we are gathered in this annual Memorial Sunday service to acknowledge the goodness of Almighty God in the providence which has preserved us a nation and has in so large a measure established the principles for which we have contended, and to do honor to those patriots who gave their last full measure of devotion in order that life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness might be secured to their posterity. It is entirely fitting and proper that we should do this, but in a larger measure we cannot add to the glory of these heroes. It is for us the living rather to be here dedicated to the unfinished task remaining before us.

Peace Is Urged

"Our fathers, our brothers and our comrades shall have suffered, bled and died in vain unless we give ourselves with a devotion that is equal to theirs to the promotion of those principles which alone can make a nation great and establish lasting peace among nations. To promote such principles and to establish such peace is our unfinished task.

"We know that one day this world is to see universal peace. We know this because it is right. No question is ever really settled until it is settled right. The question of war will be unsettled until it is settled in a lasting peace for all nations.

"And this desirable state is a prediction of the Holy Scriptures. For they tell us of a time when 'nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.'

"But this peace will not come through superficial projects and programs. It will not come because of treaties among nations, for in an emergency a treaty is a "scrap of paper." Nor will it come through an effective league of nations, for there is not sufficient unity among the nations to make any league effective. Neither will it come by disarmament, for the next great war will not be fought by armies. It will be fought by science with whole nations as enemies.

"Universal peace will come by reason of a change in human nature. The root cause of war is lust of power (Jas. 4:1.) The cause must be removed before a cure can be effected. Fortunately, we know that human nature can be changed. It was changed in Saul of Tarsus on the Damascus road. Charles Darwin once visited a group of islands in the Pacific where the inhabitants were cannabals and twenty-five years later he visited the same islands and found the people living in a high state of civilization. This change was explained by the ministry of Christian missionaries. Human nature can be changed. The power that is equal to this need is that of the Prince of Peace. Universal peace will come with the reign of the Prince of Peace. Our task will be finished when, and not until, he is enthroned over the nations of the world."

Lawrence County Farms And Farmers

By H. R. McCulloch, County Agent

TAKE GOOD CARE OF THE MARE AND FOAL

Clean quarters are absolutely necessary for the mare and young foal. This is important because the newborn foal is very susceptible to infection. If weather permits, a bluegrass pasture is a good place for the mare to foal.

Immediate treatment of the foal's navel with a 10 per cent solution of iodine is recommended. Daily dusting with boric acid powder and one or two additional treatments with iodine will aid healing by helping to keep out infection.

It is important that the foal stand and nurse within a few hours after birth. Some awkward foals may need help. It may be necessary in some cases to draw milk from the mare's udder and use a bottle and nipple to induce the foal to start nursing.

The mare should be given water that is not too cold. The feed the first day should be a bran mash or oats and bran in about half a normal ration. Get the mare back to normal feed gradually until she is on full feed in a week or 10 days if working.

When too much milk causes the foal to have diarrhea, give the mare a smaller ration of dry feed or hand-milk a portion of the mare's milk.

WOOL GROWERS PLAN TO MARKET FLEECES

The Lawrence County Cooperative Wool Growers' association is preparing to market 100,000 pounds of wool for 500 farmers in Lawrence, Beaver and Butler counties.

The marketable condition of these wools will affect the income received by the 500 flock owners who will clip and sell the fleeces. Wools are valuable mostly for their scoured content. Therefore, all foreign material, such as chaff, straw, burs and dunglocks, should be removed from the fleeces if possible. All wool should be tied flesh side out with paper twine. Use of binder twine decreases the price of the wool five cents a pound.

Some of the wools undoubtedly will be stored on farms several weeks before they are pooled. The farmer can improve his income by storing his wool in a cool, dry place where moisture will not be absorbed. Carelessness in doing this will not only injure the farmer but also hurt the reputation in the trade of the pool to which he consigns.

Eighty per cent of the wools produced in Pennsylvania outside the fine wool section of Greene and Washington counties, are pooled. Wool growers who use this method of marketing have found that it has returned additional dollars for their fleeces.

PROPER PREPARATION IMPROVES LAMB VALUE

Lawrence county's lamb crop is now growing up. Two simple practices will improve the value of this crop.

Thirty per cent of the male lambs produced in Pennsylvania last year went to the market as ram lambs. The terminal markets discount such lambs a cent a pound after July 1. This means a tremendous loss to the grower.

Now is the time to see that there will be no penalizing this year. The standard recommendation is "Dock all lambs and castrate all male lambs not saved for breeding purposes".

Our farmers can raise the quality and price of their lambs by following this rule.

THIN EARLY VEGETABLES TO ALLOW BEST GROWTH

Home gardeners commonly sow vegetable seed too thickly. This is especially true of small seeds, such as lettuce and carrots.

Thick seeding probably is done to insure a good stand of plants but the mistake is often made in not properly thinning the plants after they are up. Proper distances between plants of different vegetables are as follows:

Peas usually are not thinned; 12 to 16 plants to a foot of row is satisfactory. Space radishes one to two inches apart for the early varieties and allow a little more space for summer varieties. Bush beans do best if spaced four inches apart. Bush lima beans require five to six inches. Space beets three to four inches apart and use the thinnings for greens.

Lettuce may be thinned several times and the thinnings used for salads; for best maturity leaf varieties should be spaced six to eight inches and head lettuce 10 to 12 inches apart. Space carrots and salsify two to three inches apart and parsnips four inches.

Late seeding and too thick seeding often cause spinach to go to seed prematurely. Spinach plants should ultimately stand six to eight inches apart. The thinnings can be used for food. Space early cabbage 18 inches apart in the row and late cabbage 20 to 24 inches. Tomatoes often are planted too close; four feet between plants on rich soil is close enough and four feet between rows should be allowed.

STATE-WIDE BAND TO PLAY FARMERS' DAY

One of the features planned for the noon-day program at the Pennsylvania State College Farmers' Field Day, June 11, is a concert by a farmers' band recruited from all parts of the state.

Henry S. Brunner, instructor in agricultural education, who previously has brought together statewide Future Farmers' bands at two state farm shows and also at Future Farmers' Week last year, will be the director.

Lawrence county farm folks who would like to play in this band should enroll at the Agricultural Extension office, 206 Post Office building, New Castle. Both adults and young people are eligible. The band promises to be a real attraction and the experience of playing in it will be worthwhile.

MAKE UP FOR ROOM DEFECTS WITH THE RIGHT CURTAINS

Changing the window treatment can improve the whole appearance of a room, says Miss Mary Vogle, home economics extension representative.

Many changes can be made in hanging curtains to improve the appearance of windows that are too wide, or that are uneven in size and placing.

A low ceiling may be made to appear higher by using a straight hanging curtain at the window and by placing the rod as high as possible on the wood trim of the window. The length of the curtain, too, will modify the appearance of height. Although the common length for the glass curtain is to the window ledge, for the appearance of more height it may come to the bottom of the apron or even to the top of the baseboard.

Exceptionally high ceilings are a characteristic of many old houses. The rooms seem to be stiff and formal and so, to obtain a more cozy and homelike room, attention again is turned to curtains to accomplish the task. A high ceiling will seem lower if the curtains are brought down as far as possible on the top window frame. A valance of the same material as the curtain or a valance and over-draperies help to accomplish the same purpose. Curtains hung out over the side frames of the window will increase the apparent width of the window. To make a wide window seem narrow the curtain may be hung to expose the frame.

Types of materials also alter the appearance of the windows. Soft, sheer plain materials, such as voile, marquisette, fine nets and theatrical gauze, fall in soft straight folds and will not exclude too much light, yet will soften the lines of the window and add warmth and hominess to a room. Over-draperies are used too frequently. They give the appearance of filling up the room and often shut out too much light.

Similar window treatment should be used throughout the house to give a more pleasing appearance from the outside . Since the lines of most houses are straight, the curtains should hang straight. However, there are some houses where tie-back curtains give a more homelike appearance.

PAYS WITH LIFE FOR MURDER IN ROBBERY

Execution At State Prison

Chester Prisoner Pays For Crime In Electric Chair At Rockview

REPEATS PSALM IN FINAL WORDS

(International News Service)

ROCKVIEW PENITENTIARY, Bellefonte, Pa., May 25.—His lips moving in prayer, Clarence Thompson, 36, diminuntive negro, of Chester, went to his death in the electric chair here early today for killing Mrs. Maude Vivian Hoopes, 26, while attempting to rob her home in Linwood, near Chester, January 15, 1935.

Two contacts were required to end the negro's life. There was still a trace of life after the first contact of 2,000 volts and 14 ampers sent Thompson's body straining against the straps and again Robert E. Elliott, the executioner, turned his switches for a second and final contact.

Thompson spent his last 36 hours of life at the penitentiary in silent prayer. He was accompanied to the chair by the Rev. C. F. Lauer, the prison chaplain, who intoned the 23rd psalm, the Rev. C. T. View, who assisted.

Repeats Words Of Psalm

Even as the death mask was placed over Thompson's head, he responded with the words of the psalm.

"Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow....," Thompson prayed as the current cut off his words.

The ministers had already begun their benediction when one of the physicians applied a stethescope to Thompson's bared chest.

"No," he signaled Elliott and again the current was sent surging through the man's body.

Never once during his stay at the penitentiary did Thompson turn from his Bible. He ate the regular prison fare for his last meal. Officials said he was a model prisoner and that few men had faced the chair with such resignation.

Mrs. Hoopes was killed when Thompson fired blindly through the door of a closet in which she hid after detecting the negro robbing her home. Thompson was denied a new trial by the state supreme court and the pardon board refused him clemency.

FAILS TO MAKE CURVE; FOUR PERSONS INJURED

OIL CITY, Pa., May 25.—Four young people were injured, two seriously, when an automobile driven by Harry Moore, 24, East Second street, darted from a cindered road and dropped 12 feet into a run near the Oil City brewery early Sunday. The car turned completely over.

In Oil City hospital are Moore, with cuts, bruises and internal injuries; Edna Stewart, 15, lacerations, injured hip; Louis Bolinski, 22, CCC camp member from Pigeon, severe lacerations, possible brain concussions. Also injured was Elizabeth Stewart, 18, removed to her home, 22½ Lewis street.

Moore said the car, going fast, got beyond his control on a curve.

My New York By James Aswell

(Copyright, 1936, by Central Press Assn.)

NEW YORK, May 25.—Out of the Mailbag: "I have just come home from a visit to New York," writes a lady who prefers anonymity in San Antonio, Texas, "and I'd like to mention at least one Manhattan experience that perhaps no male reporter would stumble on. I refer to the delight of shopping for food in the various New York stores, large and small.

"Of course I didn't buy any food while I was there. I ate in restaurants and lived at a hotel. But it was a revelation to me to see the food departments of the big department stores and even the shops which sell nothing but strange and rare and imported stuff.

"The big department stores knocked my eye out. To be able to buy Kentucky and Virginia hams ready-cooked and those yard-long sausages they call bologna. I never knew what Al Smith was talking about, exactly, until I saw some. And by the way, what's the difference between bologna and boloney? My little daughter, age 12 said she was sure boloney was the plural.

"There was one funny thing, though. In those huge department stores you could buy everything to eat except what most of us eat every day—steaks and chops and things like that. Now I am going to tell you something I have never seen mentioned in any of the columns as a possibility in avoiding starvation.

"A girl I know went to New York some time back and she has a good job now. But she says she was pretty blue the first few months. Couldn't get work. Finally she was absolutely broke and the food problem began to loom. You know what she did? She toured the department stores every day and always found they were "introducing" some new product, jelly or jam or pickles or canned ham or caviar, and samples were passed around.

"One day she had four servings of caviar for breakfast, two dill pickles and a piece of angel-food cake for lunch and her dinner consisted of a large bowl of new breakfast food. Well—she lived to get a job, anyhow. Only one trouble. It makes her ill now every time she enters a department store—or passes a delicatessen window.

"I never knew how many different kinds of cheeses there were in the world until I saw one of those heaped counters. This may sound commonplace to you, who are accustomed to it, but it's really a sight for those from other cities. Of course the canned rattlesnake meat was no novelty to me; we raise 'em down here. But the cheeses were actually a sight for the eye; wonder why artists don't paint them in the profusion of yellow, orange and pale lemon colors instead of fruit and game for dining rooms.

"Of course I could probably buy all the different kinds here that I wanted, but seeing them together was what was striking.

"Oh, yes. I wonder how the Normandie feels now that the Queen Mary is about to steal some of the spotlight. It occurred to me that if the Normandie wanted to be naughty it could sail out in the bay and then sail in alongside the Queen Mary as that ship docked in New York on its maiden voyage. That would be an idea, wouldn't it?"

MAN SAYS HE SHOT HIMSELF WHILE OUT SHOOTING AT CROWS

BUTLER, Pa., May 25.—William Cox of Fairview is dead of a bullet wound in his chest. Relatives stated Cox had gone to shoot crows. After being wounded, it was learned, he had honked his auto horn on passing several cars, but none stopped until "Tay" Campbell, passing, surmised something wrong and he went back to investigate.

Cox told a doctor and several witnesses: "While shooting crows I shot myself," the only statement made. Cox was a graduate and outstanding athlete of Bucknell university, member of Foxburg Country club, the Wanango Country club of Franklin and of the Presbyterian church in Franklin. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Helen Lucille Butler Cox of Fairview, and his mother, Mrs. Helen T. Cox of Franklin.

John Othites Is Reported Better

Some improvement is reported today in the condition of John Othites aged 20, of 18 East Reynolds street, who is in the New Castle hospital suffering with stab wounds in the back and neck.

The young man was stabbed during an argument on South Mill street, early Saturday morning.

THE PARENT PROBLEM

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

COLLEGES AID YOUTH

WHILE ATTENDING the recent meeting of the North Central association in Chicago, I ran across my old friend, Frank Eversull, president of Huron college, Huron, N. D., and we talked about the opportunities of the co-educational church college. We agreed that since the students in those colleges had similar home back-grounds success in marriage from "campus matches" there should be good. Then we recalled the figures cited by Hamilton, of only one out of 75 such marriages failing as against one out of seven for the average population.

Why don't these colleges set the stage for still wiser and more abundant matchmaking? Instead of spending their efforts at keeping the men and women students apart, why don't they reverse their program and spend a similar amount of effort getting them together under wholesome conditions?

"The trouble has been," said Prof. Eversull, "that trustees of these colleges have objected to putting on good social programs for the students."

Remarks True

Unfortunately, his remarks are true. Yet he has been able to win his trustees to a liberal social program, as also have other college president and deans who have vision. And why don't the alumni and alumnae do something about the matter? Why is it that students who grumble about the lack of wholesome social opportunities of their high school or college will forget all about it after they graduate and, therefore, do nothing to correct the matter?

Why also should not the dining hall of the boarding school and college be a place of refinement? In the girl's college it usually is, as also in most sorority houses. But in the dining halls of men students, the level is pretty low. And the manners of the men at the athletic training table!

Though the average small co-educational college has vast opportunity to cultivate the social graces in its students, its achievement in this direction is shamefully inadequate. I wish that the class leaving college this June would devise measures to improve the manners of the students, as well as the social opportunities afforded at the school.

Why not write your observations and opinions to the editor of this paper? No doubt he would like to print some of them and afford an interesting and profitable public forum on the subject.

MERCER, May 25.—Mercer's sole survivor of the local G. A. R. post, George E. Hamilton, 91, is fit and looking forward to the customary Memorial Day program here when he will represent his post that once numbered 200 men.

Comrade Hamilton is not only the sole survivor of his post but also of his Company, I, of the 140 Pennsylvania Volunteer Regiment which fought the period of the Civil War. He also is one of the few living veterans of that struggle that saw President Abraham Lincoln. Comrade Hamilton remembers the great emancipator from his visits to the camp of the Army of the Potomac during the winter camp in Virginia.

On Court House Hill

Miss Beulah M. Heaton made application at the prothonotary's office Saturday for a passport to Europe. Miss Heaton is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. C. H. Heaton, the former, pastor of the First Baptist church of this city. Miss Heaton is going as a missionary to a field yet to be assigned. She expects to be gone four years from July 1.

June term of quarter sessions court promises to be light, following the pleas taken by District Attorney Mont L. Ailey Saturday. In all eighteen pleas were taken. Had it been necessary to try all of these cases it would likely have taken the better part of a week. Jurors have been drawn for two weeks of June court, but the sessions are not likely to last that long.

So far the county commissioners have not received any applications by contractors for the plans and specifications for remodeling the West Washington street bridge. It is doubtful if there are any contractors in New Castle who would be equipped for a job of this kind, so that bidders are likely to come from out-of-town. In all probability local labor will be employed to do much of the work which is not technical. However it will likely be necessary for whoever gets the contract to bring in some skilled workmen who are familiar with bridge construction.

John A. Mateer of Armstrong county, dog law enforcer for this district, was at the county treasurer's office on Saturday. He came here to check up on some chickens which were alleged to have been killed by dogs in a neighboring township. Under the law poultry owners can recover through the Bureau of Animal industry for chickens which are killed by dogs. Mr. Mateer informed County Treasurer Hartland that in order for the owner of chickens killed to recover, it is necessary that he be notified, as he has to make a personal inspection of the dead poultry. An affidavit that the poultry has been killed is not sufficient. Mateer also stated that it is up to constables in the various districts to take care of complaints of damages done by roving dogs.

How would you like to buy all the land in Lawrence county, comprising 360 square miles for $133.20. Again, how would you like to buy the land on which New Castle stands for $2.25. Impossible, you say. Yes, it would be today, but that was all the Indians got for it back in 1784. There were no well kept farms, cities or towns, or even mud roads back in those days. The country was wild. It was inhabited by Indians, wild beast and game.

Lawrence county was a part of a large tract secured from the six tribes of Indians by the treaty of Fort Stanwix, at Rome, N. Y., signed on October 23, 1784. The Indian tribes signing the treaty were the Mohawks, Oneidas, Onondagas, Senecas, Cayugas and Tuscaroras. The other parties to the treaty were representatives of the Continental congress and two from Pennsylvania. Previously the six tribes had sold other parts of Pennsylvania to William Penn and his heirs.

At Stanwix, the representatives making the treaty paid the Indians $5,000 for an area of 13,550 square miles. From this purchase the following counties were formed: Lawrence, Butler, McKean, Potter, Mercer, Clarion, Elk, Tioga, Crawford, Forest, Jefferson, Venango, Warren, Cameron, and parts of Erie, Clearfield, Allegheny, Bradford, Indiana, Lycoming, Armstrong, Clinton and Beaver.

The rate of purchase was 37 cents per square mile. The cost of 16 and two-thirds acres was one cent; of 166 and two-thirds acres, ten cents, and of 1,666 and two-thirds acres one dollar. That is why you could have bought Lawrence county pretty cheap if you had been around in the good old days.

New Castle Man Given License For Amateur Station

Paul D. Genkinger, 1004 Butler Avenue, Gets License For Two Years

(Special To The News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 25.—As operator of amateur station W8PYO, Paul D. Genkinger, 1004 Butler avenue, New Castle, Pa., may now send radio messages to any station on ship or shore, it was learned today at the Federal Communications Commission.

The New Castle man has been granted a license for his amateur station and a license as an amateur operator. For the next two years he may send, receive and relay messages to government, private and business stations, so long as he does not interfere with commercial broadcasting or scheduled ship to shore communication.

Under F. C. C. regulations Genkinger is prohibited from accepting pay for sending and receiving messages, and he is not allowed to broadcast music or advertising.

In order to obtain his amateur station license Genkinger had to pass an examination showing his ability to operate a radio station and his technical knowledge of its construction and maintenance.

Delegations From Three Counties Gather Here On Saturday

MEETINGS HELD IN BEN FRANKLIN HIGH

With ideal weather prevailing, the third annual tri-county rally of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and the Rebekahs was held on Saturday afternoon, May 23. Members of both orders from Lawrence, Butler and Mercer counties were present, with sessions being held in the Benjamin Franklin Junior high school and the Odd Fellow's hall on East Washington street.

Sessions were held in the afternoon and the evening. In the Odd Fellow's hall in the afternoon session a program of entertainment was presented for the ladies present, with Mrs. Nellie Houk acting as general chairman and Sarah McCormick as mistress of ceremonies. An added attraction to the scheduled program was a one-act comedy by the dramatics class of the senior high school.

Franklin School

In the afternoon session in the Benjamin Franklin Junior high school a band concert and entertainment was held. Richard P. Hill acted a the general chairman of the day and Harold E. Burns of Ellwood City as master of ceremonies. At five o'clock the boys of the bands present were fed in the cafeteria of the school.

At six forty-five the parade of the lodges and bands moved out from the Rosena Furnace grounds on South Mill street. Heading the parade were two motor patrolmen, a squad of six mounted state policemen, a city car bearing Mayor Charles E. McGrath and Chief of Police Criswell. A. G. Eicholtz was the chief marshal. Following them was the car containing the State Grand Master C. W. Fenton and other officials and then came the bands and lodges.

Marching to the junior high school the parade disbanded and the members filed inside where Mayor Charles E. McGrath welcomed the guests. His address was responded to by the state grand master, C. W. Fenton. Sixteen members were given the third degree and 150 the Holstein Bull degree. Degrees were conferred by the Warren, O., degree team and the Holstein degree team of Butler.

General Chairman Hill, General Chairwoman Houk and the various committees were pleased with the day's events and the co-operation extended by city officials. About 1,000 Odd Fellows and Rebekahs were present.

LESSON FROM GOLF

When I believed content to be
I had to shoot a seventy-three
And play in par each separate hole,
Then golf was torture to my soul.

When I played golf with stern set lip
As one who seeks the championship,
Ill temper shot me through and through.
A happy day I seldom knew.

While still I held the thought that I
Must always have a perfect lie
And always truly hit the ball,
Golf wasn't any fun at all.

But now that I no longer seek
To join the few upon the peak,
Good shot or bad, it's all the same.
I'm getting pleasure from the game.

Unfretted now by cup or score,
I am a nervous wreck no more.
I'm done with temper-fits and groans,
I know I can't be Bobby Jones.

Contented, now the game I play
And make the most of every day,
I even come at night elate
Because I've made a ninety-eight.

And so with life! Because I fall
Short of the peak, why spoil it all?

It was covered with blood-red poppies, with a large white cross at the head. Pine trees with a background of spirea, surrounded the pulpit.

Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary assisted in the service, decked in their new uniforms of white, with blue ties. This same group took part in the water services at North street bridge, and the annual memorial service in the First Baptist church in the evening.

The program was as follows:

Tony Lazzeri And New York Yankees Set New Records

Lazzeri Smashes Out Three Homers As Yanks Win Game 25 To 2

Lazzeri Gets Six Homers In Two Games, Red Legs Throttle Pirates

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service
Sports Writer

NEW YORK, May 25.—Antonio (Poosh 'Em Up) Lazzeri of San Francisco, who for lo these many years has been the mainstay of the New York Yankees' infield, marched right into the palace of baseball's immortals today and nudged the eminent Mr. Babe Ruth off at least a corner of his hitting throne.

Down in Philadelphia yesterday the good Signor exploded like one of Il Duce's 2,000 pound air bombs exploded in Haile Selassie's backyard and the result was equally as devastating. In leading the Yankees to an unparalleled 25 to 2 victory over the Athletics, Lazzeri hit three home runs and a triple, two of the homers coming with the bases filled, and set enough new batting records to reach from here on.

Sets New Records

Major League Records
(Tony Lazzeri)

Most home runs with bases filled in a single game—2.

Most home runs in four consecutive games—7.

The Yankee second sacker hit a four master in Detroit last Thursday. After being idle Friday, he hit six in three games in Philadelphia on Saturday and Sunday. The previous record, 6, was held pointly by Ruth, Jim Bottomley, Bill Terry, Chuck Klein and Ken Williams.

Most home runs in three consecutive games—6.

Most home runs in two consecutive games—5.

American League Record
(Lazzeri)

Most runs batted in, single game—11. The previous mark, 9, was made by Jimmy Foxx in 1933.

(Yankees)

Most home runs in two consecutive games—11. The previous major league mark of 10 was set by Pittsburgh in the National League in 1925.

By scoring 25 runs, the Yankees came within three of the modern record. The St. Louis Cards piled up 28 in 1929. But in 1897, the Chicago Cubs scored the amazing total of 36 runs.

Number Of Walks

Sixteen bases on balls were given the Yankees, two less than the record number amassed by Detroit in 1916.

With a total of 46 bases on 19 hits, the Yankees were two behind their own modern record made in 1932. Cincinnati made 55 in 1893.

Ben Chapman got five passes, only one less than Walter Wilmot of the Chicago Nationals drew in 1891.

Pearson Wins

Other details are irrelevant. Monte Pearson coasted to his sixth victory of the year behind the Yankees' astonishing outburst and the Mackmen used five alleged pitchers in a vain attempt to halt the carnage, viz., George Turbeville, Bill Dietrich, Malton Bullock, Herman Fink and Woodie Upchurch.

The Washington Senators won their second in a row from the Boston Red Sox, with Jake Powell and their 19-year-old phenom, Buddy Lewis, playing star hitting and run-scoring roles. The score was 12-4.

Indians Win

The champion Detroit Tigers were limited to two lone singles by Lloyd Brown and in consequence suffered a 7 to 0 shutout at the hands of the Cleveland Indians. The Indians drove Schoolboy Rowe from the mound.

Luke Sewell's ninth inning homer brought to an end a mound duel between Babe Phelps and Al Thomas and gave the Chicago White Sox a 7-5 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

Cards Top Cubs

Leroy Parmelee further justified the trade that took him from the Giants to the Cardinals by pitching St. Louis to an impressive 7-1 triumph over the Chicago Cubs. Parmelee held the Cub to five hits. The Cards drove Curt Davis, recently acquired by the Cubs from the Phillies, from the box in the seventh inning.

Sam Leslie's five hits, two singles, double, triple and homer, gave the New York Giants a 13 to 5 triumph over the Phillies. The Terrymen collected 21 safeties.

Reds Crush Pirates

The Cincinnati Reds crushed the Pittsburgh Pirates under a 12 to 1 count on Hollingsworth's five-hit pitching, four Pittsburgh errors and ineffectual mound work by Weaver Tising and Brown.

The Brooklyn Dodgers surprised even themselves by playing errorless ball and defeating the Boston Bees, 11 to 2. Van Lingle Mungo pitched for Casey Stengel's charges.

Allison May Get Cup Post

Believe Wilmer Allison Holds Edge Over Bryan For Davis Cup Post

(International News Service)

HAVERFORD, Pa., May 25.—Wilmer Allison, 31-year-old national singles champion, today held the slimmest of edges over Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, Atlanta dynamo, for the second singles berth on the U. S. Davis cup team that will oppose Australia in interzone competition next weekend.

As practice for the Americans moved into its last week before the opening match Memorial Day at the Germantown Cricket Club, team officials were still in a desperate quandary because of defeats administered to both Allison and Grant in the series of "exhibition" matches here.

The matches served only to confirm their assurance that American hopes of victory over the Anzacs would rest with red-haired Don Budge in the singles and with Budge and Gene Mako who are expected to capture the doubles for the United States.

Allison, playing indifferently and in frequent difficulty with the net, was trounced on Merion Cricket Club turf in three out of four sets by Karel Kozeluh, tennis pro, as the "test" matches concluded, but Grant fared little better with the whirlwind Budge.

Kozeluh, coach of the American squad, raced to victory, 6-3, 6-4, 6-8 and 7-5, while Budge out-drove and out-placed Grant to win in straight sets, 6-3, 6-1.

BACCALAUREATE IS HELD ON SUNDAY

Impressive Service Is Held For Largest Class In History Of School

REV. FR. R. D. WILKEY GIVES FINE SERMON

ELLWOOD CITY, May 25—Honor was bestowed upon the largest class to ever graduate from Ellwood City high school Sunday evening in an impressive baccalaureate service at the Lincoln auditorium. A capacity throng was present to pay tribute to the 167 members of the class as all the local churches united for this service.

The stage was beautifully decorated with ferns and lovely plants. Here were seated the ministers participating in the program and the Girls' Glee club. As the band, under the direction of Prof. Paul Winter, struck up a march, the class in its solemn gray attire began the processional from the rear of the auditorium. All wore the customary rose bud and came to a reserved section of the auditorium as the audience stood at attention. The procession was led by two ushers, Supt. of Schools Vaughn R. DeLong, Principal Ralph C. Shaffer and the class officers.

Rev. J. E. Caughey, pastor of the Wurtemburg U. P. church, then presided over the evening's program. Besides playing two special selections, the band accompanied in the singing of two hymns by the assemblage. A noteworthy rendition was given by the Girls' Glee club under the direction of Miss Mary Jane Thompson.

Fr. Wilkey Speaks.

The sermon of the evening was brought by the Rev. Fr. R. D. A. Wilkey, rector of the St. Agatha Catholic church of this city. He brought a worthy message to the class which deeply impressed his hearers. It was given in a masterful manner and left its impression on all.

Fr. Wilkey used as his text the ninth and tenth verses of the first chapter of St. Paul's Epistle to the Colossians as follows: "Therefore we also find that we heard it and cease not to pray for you and to beg that you will be filled with the knowledge of his will in all wisdom and spiritual understanding. That you may walk worthy of God in all things pleasing. Being fruitful in every good work and increasing in the knowledge of God." In a very effective manner the speaker of the evening appropriated this text to the graduating class.

"High ideas and ideals in life are the most valuable and precious attainments that can be possessed," the speaker declared. "It leads to the supreme intelligence, which is God." Accord the human will with the will of God and a person will be supplied abundantly with the strength to mete the everyday problems of life. He will achieve and accomplish the lofty ideas of life that will not only bring honor to himself but to civilization. The embryo of this is Christianity, which was the true founding of civilization.

True Education.

True education is the knowledge of God. There should be no rest until His ideas and ideals have been discovered and properly translated to life. Imitations and substitutes will bring no good. Only genuinity is necessary or else a total collapse of attainment purposes will result. Christianity is the genuine, complete and true civilization which has brought enlightenment and accomplishment. Guided by God's strong and steady hand one should go far in life. This is the supreme idea of life and living.

In closing, Fr. Wilkey stated to the class that this was their civilization—to make or to break, promote or retard the sustaining power of progress. He urged the proper development of spiritual education and not to be dazzled or misled by the marvelous discoveries and influences of this modern day and age. To enter the struggle of life is not easy. There will be many sacrifices to make which in reality is a true test of civilization. "But by all means measure up to the divine idea and ideals. Do what you can in life and increase your knowledge of God." These were the closing words of advice by Fr. Wilkey.

After a hymn by the assemblage Rev. W. E. Minteer pronounced the benediction to close the service.

The complete program was carried out as follows:

Presiding—Rev. J. E. Caughey.
Music, "Ave Maria", Schubert; "Hope March," Papini—Orchestra.
Invocation—Rev. E. G. Aubrey.
Hymn—"Jesus, I My Cross Have Taken."
Scripture reading—Rev. A. M. Stevenson.
Prayer—Rev. F. H. Daubenspeck.
Girls Glee club—"Happy Days," (arranged)—A. Strelezki.
Sermon—Rev. R. D. Wilkey.
Hymn—"O God, Our Help in Ages Past."
Benediction—Rev. W. E. Minteer.

Ellport School Addition Making Good Progress

Problems of readin', writin', and 'rithmatic will be studied under modern and well-situated conditions by Ellport children when the new Ellport school addition is completed under Works Progress Administration auspices, it was announced today.

J. Vale Downie, district WPA director for District 14, said that the new stone and steel constructed building would guarantee adequate prevention of overcrowding of children now housed in a similar building adjacent.

Thirty workmen from Ellport district are employed there. Located near the roadside at Ellport, the biulding is now nearing such a point of construction that the roof will be added within the next short while.

Built of red and copper colored tippled sandstone, the building, when finished, will have one section 79 by 26 feet. In the rear, there will be two additional rooms 61 by 10½ feet. The structure is one story. Spacious windows are to be installed, affording healthful lighting and ventilation.

Stone used in blocking the structure is quarried nearby. It is then cut into artistic blocks by stone masons. Special attention is being paid by workmen in arranging blocks into an attractive jig-saw puzzle design. Thick concrete binders add to the intrinsic beauty of the walls. The project was started by the WPA last December 2. WPA's contribution to the job was $12,000.

Youthful King And His Mother Inspect Liner Queen Mary

(International News Service)

LONDON, May 25.—King Edward VIII returned to his country residence today from a trip to Southampton where, accompanied by Queen Mary and other members of the royal family, he inspected the huge Cunard Liner Queen Mary which will start its maiden voyage to New York on Wednesday.

Unmindful of public anxiety over his flying, King Edward was flown to Eastleigh in his private plane, continuing to the seaport by motor. Returning, his plane landed him at Windsor at 5:15 p. m. He motored to Fort Belvedere.

General List Of Stocks Settle Into Narrow Range In Market Today

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service
Financial Writer

NEW YORK, May 25.—Trading turned extremely dull in the stock market today after a fairly brisk opening, with the general list settling into a narrow range slightly above their previous closings.

Steels led a vigorous upswing at the start, reflecting the price advances in finished steel products for third quarter delivery, but a steady trickle of profit-taking made its appearance soon after and stocks slid back from their best levels in short order.

Aside from the steel group, gains were mostly of negligible proportions. Bethlehem gained a point and U. S. Steel preferred spurted two points, while the common moved fractionally higher.

Louisiana Oil preferred continued its spectacular advance, which has continued uninterruptedly over the past two weeks, skyrocketing ten points to a new 1936 peak before encountering profit-taking.

Rails and rubbers were fractionally improved, the latter in response to predictions of another increase in prices before July 4.

Oils were led upward by Standard of New Jersey, which at one time was a point above Saturday's final quotation. Atlantic Refining and Socony-Vacuum were moderately active.

Amusement shares moved contrary to the general trend. Loew's, Warner Brothers and Paramount were fractionally lower in light dealings. Mining shares also were depressed, U. S. Smelting and Dome Mines each losing a point.

A few volatile issues scored wide gains. Case, Westinghouse and U. S. Gypsum each ran up two and more points. American Type Founders preferred spurted more than six.

Bonds were irregularly higher. Grains ruled slightly higher among with cotton.

Margiotti Seeking Favorable Action For Milk Control

Asks State Supreme Court To Declare Control Bill Constitutional

Bill Is Necessary For Protection Of Public Health, Margiotti Says

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, May 25—Defending the law's price-fixing provisions, Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti today asked the state supreme court to uphold constitutionality of the Milk Control Act as a "lawful exercise of the state police power".

The act, he declared, is necessary for protection of public health and the preservation of Pennsylvania's dairy industry.

Certified from superior court for final disposition, the case originated with a Lancaster county court decision holding the milk law of 1934 unconstitutional on an act taken by Wayne L. Rohrer, Lancaster county milk dealer.

No Violation

Price fixing provisions of the 1934 milk law do not violate the state constitution, Margiotti argued, asserting:

"The legislature has found that milk production and distribution is a paramount industry respecting a vital, perishable food, which industry had become unstable and demoralized to the extent of injuring public health and welfare, largely because of inadequacy in the prices paid to milk producers."

Milk producers, Margiotti argued, are "entirely at the mercy of the dealers," with prices received by the farmer beyond his control unless the legislature intervenes in his behalf.

"Our legislature has acted," the attorney general declared with emphasis. He added:

"The legislature passed the milk control act in an honest effort to correct the serious consequences to the health of the public and to the economic security of the producer.

Must Be Fair

"Such a regulation cannot be set aside by the courts merely because it adopts and fixes prices deemed by the legislature to be fair to those engaged in the industry and to the consuming public."

"This is particularly true in this case, where the economic maladjustment is entirely one of price which threatens the producer on the one hand and the consumer on the other."

Margiotti argued that "laws cannot enforce themselves," pointing out that sanitation improvements would not be possible if farmers could not realize a profit on their dairy product sales.

Since enactment of the milk law, he further argued, there have been no such dairy strikes as threatened York, Bradford, Dauphin and Cumberland counties prior to establishment of the law's minimum prices.

Young Bride Has Started Action To Get Divorce

Mrs. Grace Golden Leonard Will Divorce Her "Hermit" Husband

(International News Service)

MADISON, Wis., May 25.—The 28-year-old college girl bride who last June 29 told her friends she was "entering without fear" the "phobic prison" of Professor William Ellery Leonard who dared not leave an area of six city blocks lest he be bitten by a locomotive, today had on file a suit to divorce the 60-year-old English scholar and contemporary poet.

Grace Golden Leonard, 28, the savant's third wife, in her bill charges Prof. Leonard has told friends she is "insane, uses abusive language towards him and is wavering in her marital allegiance," Sheriff Lawrence Larson, who served the summons on the professor, revealed today.

It was only last December that Prof. Leonard declared "I have passed the walls," and credited his co-ed bride with curing him of the strange fixation which his second wife, who shared his restricted life for 20 years, called "a brain storm" when she divorced him in 1934.
